Close-Up

• A group of ladies from the Catholic Women's League enjoyed the Close-Up program on education (Sunday, January 6, CBC - TV). Everyone on this program had the opportunity to express their own viewpoint.

We hope that Close-Up will continue to bring programs of this quality to their viewers.—C.W.L., Winnipeg.

Praises for Georges

• I feel I must say a word of appreciation for a local artist, Georges LaFleche. I'm a classical music faddist but I also like good popular stuff when it is given to me with full musical content, and that's what Georges does. He makes the American so-called greats sound sick by comparison.

—B.W., Winnipeg.

Old Favourites on Jamboree

• To the Jamboree cast: I have watched Red River Jamboree (Saturdays, CBC-TV) for many years and think it is one of the best. I especially like the programs in which you sing a number of old favourites. People of all ages like songs of yesteryear, songs in which the melody lingers on. Good luck to you all.

Guide to Better Viewing

• Since the activation of Channel 12 in our area by CKCK-TV of Regina, Sask., the CBC Times promises to be useful and interesting in obtaining good TV viewing. We are especially gratified by this achievement of CKCK-TV as it liberates us from a single channel captivity in which we have been held for the past several years.

Programs of Quality

• I wish to tell you how much I enjoy listening to your broadcasts.

Unlike the vast majority of our American stations CBW offers programs of quality and meaning. Thank you for many hours of enjoyable and rewarding listening.

CBC-TV a "Letdown"

• We have just returned from a visit to the West Coast, and what a letdown when we looked over the corny programs listed in the CBC Times for our very limited viewing area on the Prairies. What has happened to the nice little half-hour stories of last winter, the stories of wild-life, the quiz programs . . . ? It's awful turning on the TV after having the choice of programs from (numerous stations in the Vancouver area). We didn't have to waste our time with CBC.

Why not send out a questionnaire and see what the general public wants—certainly not the likes of Wayne and Shuster or Car 54. I think most people watch TV for complete relaxation. . . .

—Mrs. R.B.M., Rocanville, Sask.

The cause of this viewer's dissatisfaction seems to be largely that one station's programming does not include as much to interest her as did several stations' programming in Vancouver. Is this not to be expected?

As for half-hour drama, CBC-TV this year is carrying the LORETTA YOUNG THEATRE series and the SCARLETT HILL week-day serial which has a new story starting each Friday.

Wildlife shows on CBC-TV at present include THIS LIVING WORLD (Mondays), and ALBERTA GAME FARM (Saturdays). However, the latter is not carried on the affiliated station watched by this viewer.

Both of the network's two quiz programs, FRONT PAGE CHALLENGE (Tuesdays) and FLASHBACK (Sundays), are carried on the affiliate.

Although general questionnaires are not circulated, the CBC does subscribe to several ratings services which give a good picture of what the public watches. CBC programming is not planned on a basis only of catering to the tastes of the majority, however; special consideration is given to the wide disparity of tastes in the country, and it is attempted to schedule programs that appeal to everyone's special tastes at some time, if those tastes are shared by a recognizable group of Canadians.

On Our Cover . . .

PRINCESS GRACE SHOWS HER "HOME"

ONE OF THE biggest hits of North American television last year was a tour of the White House conducted by Mrs. John F. Kennedy. Now, another beautiful "first lady" is going to take television viewers on a conducted tour of her place. The "place" in this case is the entire principality of Monaco, and the guide will be Princess Grace, formerly the Hollywood actress, Grace Kelly.

Scheduled stops include the royal palace, the Foyer Sainte Devote (an orphanage under the patronage of Princess Grace), the Oceanographic Museum and its scientific centre directed by world-famous "father of skin-diving," Jacques-Yves Cousteau, and the Monte Carlo Opera House.

The hour-long program, entitled A Look at Monaco, originates with the CBS television network, and will be seen on CBC-TV on Sunday evening, February 17.

It has been customary to see Monaco, on the one hand, as an idyllic, timeless little country — a ne plus ultra for sun-worshippers and lovers of the languid life — on the other, as a land of romance, suspense, drama, and abrupt fluctuations of fortunes—all pulsating in tempo with the spinning of a roulette wheel in the glittering Monte Carlo Casino.

This traditional view of Monaco still has some validity. The sun shines as brightly as ever; the Casino still throbs with life, but such a perspective is too small-scaled to be truly representative of Monaco today. Important changes have been taking place in the tiny principality by the sea, causing it to out-grow its legendary dimensions.

For example: at one time, few buildings in Monaco were more

LIGHT ENTERTAINMENT with a fresh approach each week is heard in a new series of one-occasion shows on CBC Radio. For Your Approval, 10:05 to 10:30 p.m. each Friday will present a variety of instrumental groups and vocalists under different Winnipeg conductors week by week.

First of the series, which was to be heard Friday, February 8, presented songs of inspiration by The Altones, well-known male vocal quartet seen on CBC-TV's Red River Jamboree Fridays.

In marked contrast, the second program, Friday, February 15, is to include smooth popular music in the sentimental vein, with an unusual instrumental combination under the baton of Neil Harris. A piano, celeste, flute, clarinet, vibes, electric guitar, bass and drums will create music with an ethereal, delicate flavour, ideal for late-night relaxation. Lorraine West is vocalist.

February 22nd's show, with the Dave Stubbs combo, is still being planned.

Jack Bingham, now of CBC Winnipeg but for several years producer of the widely acclaimed CBC Vancouver variety show Leicester Square, is in charge of For Your Approval.

VIEWERS IN Flin Flon and The Pas, served by CBWBT and CBWBT-1, now can enjoy news telecasts even though their stations are not on the trans-Canada microwave network. Ten-minute films featuring reports on national and international news events and commentaries from CBC correspondents are flown to the remote northern Manitoba communities. They are shown each evening but Sunday at 11 p.m.

IF YOU were to see a cougar crouching a few feet in front of you, eyeing you hungrily and giving every appearance of making ready for the "kill," what would you do? Don Brown, production assistant on the crew that filmed the Alberta Game Farm series (Saturdays on CBC-TV) was confronted with this situation, but calmly went on with his work INSIDE the cougar cage on the Farm. Because Don is still around to tell about it, it appears that the giant cat was merely toying with the devoted CBC employee. But Don can hardly be blamed for feeling relieved that this particular part of the filming assignment is safely in the past.

GLENN GOULD

GLENN GOULD's second Festival special for CBC-TV this season, to be telecast March 4, will include an original Gould composition, So You Want to Write a Fugue. It will be performed by the Canadian String Quartet and a vocal quartet—Elizabeth Benson-Guy, Patricia Rideout, Gordon Wry and Edgar Murdoch.

CBC Radio listeners needn't wait that long to enjoy a performance by Gould, however. The world-renowned Canadian pianist is guest artist with the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra Sunday, February 17 at 6:00 p.m.

A CBC NEWSMAGAZINE crew left Toronto February 3 for Cuba to prepare a comprehensive report on the current Cuban political, social and economic situation and on Russian military establishment.

Permission for the Cuban trip was granted CBC Newsmagazine by the Cuban information ministry.

As far as is known, no other television reporting crew from North America has been allowed in Cuba since the recent crisis with the United States over the presence of Russian inter-continental missiles.

PLAYDATE:

A Stimulating Trio

THURSDAY NIGHT, February 21, CBC-TV's Playdate presents a trio of short plays offering three impressions of how the individual accepts reality. Does life change much in 70 years? These plays say "no." The Stronger (circa 1890), by Swedish dramatist August Strindberg, represents the era before the modern age. The Long Goodbye (circa 1930), by American playwright Tennessee Williams, represents man beaten by the machine. The New Tenant (circa 1960), by avant-garde, Rumanian-born writer Eugene Ionesco, represents man beaten by his environment.

Production of all three plays is by Leo Orenstein. He describes The Stronger as "a curious play, a quiet little classic which is as valid today as when it was written just before the turn of the century. It is played by two women, only one of whom speaks. The problem, and Strindberg makes you wrestle with it, is this: What is strength and what is weakness? In our society we're inclined to believe that people who exhibit strength are strong. But sometimes the weak, who have to struggle against insuperable odds, are really stronger."

Many of Strindberg's plays showed his penetrating interest in the psyche of woman. He hated and loved them sporadically. But in The Stronger his understanding rather than his dislike of them is uppermost as he investigates feline rivalry between two actresses, both in love with the same man. The wife does all the talking, but the other woman perhaps says more with her silence. By the end of their little scene together in a restaurant on Christmas Eve, Strindberg has revealed a savage insight into motive and situation. Irene Mayeska plays Mrs. X, and Anna Reiser appears as Miss Y.

In The Long Goodbye, Tennessee Williams, a great admirer of Strindberg, offers a romantic view of possessiveness in a little slice-of-life coloured by memory. On moving-day, a young man just about to leave the family apartment for the last time sifts through some bittersweet memories as his posses-

Does Confederation Still Work?

A series of programs this week on CBC Radio and the next four weeks on CBC-TV's Citizens' Forum examines the adequacy of Canada's constitution

HAS THE CANADIAN constitution withstood the test of time? Is Confederation in its present form an inadequate framework for Canada in this age of technological expansion? Are relations between French- and English-speaking Canada in need of a thorough re-appraisal?

From the press, the public, and political figures in Canada there have been numerous indications that these questions are both timely and pertinent. To provide some answers, the English- and French-language services of the CBC organized a seminar last month at Ste. Agathe, Quebec. During the two days of meetings, four sessions were held, covering respectively Education, Economic Development, Fiscal Arrangements, and Civil Rights. The discussions were carried on bi-lingually, with simultaneous translations provided, and were videotaped and recorded for presentation on both the English and French television and radio networks.

Entitled Confederation—A Century Later: Does It Still Work?, the programs have been produced by Robert Seguin, regular producer of the French network program, Premier Plan. Jean Blais, assistant supervisor of adult education and public affairs programs, was in charge for the French networks. Margaret Howes, regional supervisor, public affairs (English), Montreal, and Christina McDougall, national program organizer of Citizens' Forum, were responsible for the English programs.

Presenting introductory papers on the four discussion topics will be: Dr. Francis Leddy, vice-president and dean of the faculty of arts, University of Saskatchewan, who will speak on Education; Frank Scott, dean of the faculty of law, McGill University, on Civil Rights; Pierre Elliott Trudeau, of the faculty of law, University of Montreal, on Fiscal Arrangements; and Jacques Parizeau, of l'Ecole des Hautes Etudes Commerciales, Montreal, on Economic Development. Other participants joining in the discussion periods will be: Hon. Robert Bonner, attorney general of British Columbia; D. W. Gallagher, economic advisor to the government of New Brunswick; Peter Waite, head of the department of history, Dalhousie University; Ronald Ritchie, executive assistant to the board of directors, Imperial Oil Company; Hon. Paul Gerin-Lajoie, minister of youth and welfare, province of Quebec; Michel Brunet, department of history, University of Montreal; Marcel Faribault, president and general manager of Trust General du Canada; and Jean Marchand, president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions. Chairman of the seminar will be Gérard Pelletier, editor of La Presse.

These men were invited as individuals, points out Miss McDougall, not as representatives of an organization or party, but because they were in touch with many levels of Canadian society and had shown themselves to be concerned with some of the workings of the British North America Act as applied to the citizen in his day-to-day life. Last year, when the Citizens' Forum Committee of the (Please turn to page 23)

ONE OF THE most encouraging things in the outlook for mental illness is the fact that the public is learning that psychiatry is not some sort of esoteric black magic, that psycho-therapy isn't threatening or secretive. As the layman sees mental illness for what it really is, a sickness that could befall anyone, like a heart attack or T.B., many more frightened and unhappy men, women and children with serious emotional problems are seeking and getting medical help, and returning to normal lives—sometimes to an even happier and more rewarding existence than they knew before they became ill. Now they and their families understand each other better, because they have learned to communicate.

Four such cases will be studied on CBC-TV, starting Wednesday night, February 20, when Explorations presents its second series about mental illness, The Disordered Mind, produced by Robert Anderson Associates Limited. It covers four phases of mental disturbances: psychosomatic conditions, psychotic conditions, paranoid-schizophrenia, and delinquent conditions. Viewers will see actual cases at the beginning of psychiatric treatment and again several months later when the patients are well on the road to recovery.

The programs were filmed with the full co-operation and permission of the patients and their relatives and friends who appear "on camera." No actors have been used. Producer and host is Robert Anderson, who feels that most viewers will find the series disturbing but instructive, because there are elements in the four cases which are common to all of us, no matter what our stage of mental health may be. Consultant for the series is Dr. H. E. Lehmann, clinical director, Verdun Protestant Hospital, and associate professor of psychiatry at McGill University.

Because the public is often called upon to make the first diagnosis in mental illness, it is important for everyone to recognize the symptoms of emotional lack of equilibrium, Dr. Lehmann points out, and to learn how it can be dealt with. "Everybody knows when he has a cold," he says. "He feels sick, washed-out; he has a fever, headache, and so on. But most people do not know when they are mentally ill. And the public is called upon again, more than with any other illness, in patients' rehabilitation period, in understanding and tolerating them. But understanding is attained only if they know a little bit more about how the illness came about.

"We don't have good formal statistics, but I'm quite convinced that there is almost certainly a real increase in neurotic conditions—emotional disturbances, serious emotional disorders, anxiety and tension, and states of depression. The psychoses, the paranoid states, probably have not increased, but the behaviour disorders, such as delinquency and alcoholism, and the anxiety states, are increasing. However, the increase in numbers of patients being treated is partly due to the fact that there are so many more facilities for treating them today, and that we know a good deal more about how to treat them."

Dr. Lehmann points out that: "Intelligence is not the same as emotional security or strength of personality. Somebody can be highly intelligent and very well educated and still have psychological troubles. Real mental illness, or what the layman used to call insanity, is by no means incurable, and in fact in most cases nowadays of acute mental breakdowns, patients will be cured or certainly restored to normal within two to four months. And the avant-garde of the public, the leaders, the executives, etc., are, some of them, ready and willing to take a man back on staff after he has been in a mental hospital."

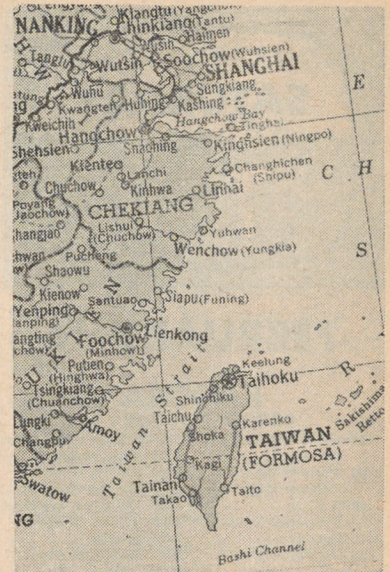

Dr. Lehmann believes that if parents know how to raise children they should be able to spot the first danger sign. "Parents should learn that if they are emotionally pre-occupied, tied up, and have troubles of their own, they are almost certainly damaging their children. And therefore they ought, like somebody who has an infectious disease, to be careful to keep away from others in order not to damage them. They should realize automatically, when they are emotionally disturbed for any length of time, that this is going to have an effect on their children, and they should ask for help—if not for themselves, at least for the children."

The first program, on February 20, concerns a widespread psychosomatic condition: obesity. The patient is a 13-year-old girl who is fat—though by no means grossly so—and is unhappy about her compulsive eating habit. She and her whole family receive psychotherapy. The psychiatrist involved is Dr. Vivian Rakoff. Viewers will see the girl and her family at the time their weekly treatment began, and

CBC Radio's
PROJECT '63:

Focus on Formosa

The world is not permitted to forget the island off the China coast which remains a trump card in the hands of the free world

ABOUT 100 MILES off the South China coast lies an island with two names. The Chinese, who first took control of the island in 1683, call it Taiwan (Terraced Bay); the rest of the world knows it by its Portuguese name—Ilha Formosa (Beautiful Isle)—and the world has good cause to know the name well, for few areas have been so consistently in the public eye during the past 15 years.

This week, CBC Radio's Project '63 (Sunday, February 17, 5:00 p.m.), will present an hour-long study of Formosa. Prepared by freelance writer-broadcaster Kerry Ellard and produced by Jack Vance of the Project '63 staff, the program will present interviews with Formosans and Chinese living on the island, including Chen Cheng, vice-president of the Chinese Nationalist Government and legally ordained successor to President Chiang Kai-Shek, and James Shen, senior Nationalist information officer.

The program is the result of a six-week visit made to the island by Ellard, who has lived in the Orient for the past two years and who prepared the two programs on Japan heard on Project '63 last fall.

Formosa, or Taiwan, is a leaf-shaped island about 60 miles across by 175 miles long. Two-thirds of the country is covered by tropical forest—banyans, Japanese cedars, teak, black ebony, and most of the world's camphor trees. The island's backbone is formed by two mountain ranges, running north to south, which thrust up some 50 peaks of 10,000 feet or more. On the east coast, the mountains become sheer rock walls, dropping 1,500 to 7,000 feet into the sea. On the west, facing the mainland, they fall away, in the terraces that give the island its Chinese name, down to a wide coastal plain.

The climate and fertile soil combine to produce large amounts of rice, tea, sugar, and fruit, and in their paddy fields many Formosans grow two crops of rice each year and follow these up with a third crop of turnips or cabbages.

But the "Beautiful Isle" has some shortcomings. In early fall it is often whipped by typhoons, and it averages 330 earthquakes a year. In addition, the island has no less than 12 varieties of poisonous snakes, including the deadly "hundred pace snake," named for the belief that its victim walks 100 paces, then falls dead.

The 1950 census gave Formosa's population as 7,554,399, but with the influx of Chinese from the mainland this figure has increased to about 10 million.

Formosa's recorded history began in the 15th century, when Chinese started to settle along the island's western coastal plains. The next century saw the arrival of Europeans — Portuguese, Dutch, and Spaniards — using the newly-discovered sea-routes to the Pacific via the Cape of Good Hope and the Horn. Through the 1600s, there was almost constant fighting among the three European groups, the Chinese, and the head-hunting Formosan aborigines, who were forced to retreat to the west into the mountain areas where they have lived in impregnable isolation ever since.

Between 1622 and 1660 the Dutch were the dominant invaders, establishing strong forts and laying claim, effectively supported by force, to a long strip of western coastline. But in 1661 the Dutch were overrun by South Chinese, Ming loyalists who were fleeing before the Manchu invaders of China. The Ming forces, supported by an ex-pirate named Koxinga, who boasted a personal army of 25,000 and a large fleet, set up an independent regime that lasted for 22 years until the island was captured by the Manchus in 1683.

Formosa remained part of the Manchu empire for 212 years, but during that period the Formosans became different from mainland Chinese, in much the same way that Americans developed a different type from their British stock. They spoke a Fukienese dialect, and few could converse (Please turn to page 27)

Quest Presents Satire on Morals

AN EPISODE from Letting Go, a long first novel by a controversial young American writer, Philip Roth, has been dramatized by M. Charles Cohen for presentation on CBC-TV's Quest on Sunday night, February 17, under the title of Paul Loves Libby.

Letting Go is a richly witty satire on contemporary morals, as reflected in academic life and in a middle-class Jewish community. Its author has been compared to J. D. Salinger, but, while feeling flattered, Roth thinks the comparison is ridiculous. "If you italicize a word you are accused of mimicking Salinger," he says.

Paul Loves Libby is about a Jewish boy who wants to marry a Roman Catholic girl he met in university. When his parents hear the news they dissolve in tears, not only because of his decision to marry outside his faith, but also because of their own impotence in trying to dissuade him. "They had somehow reared a boy whom they could not bludgeon or make hysterical," Roth says.

Paul is doomed to failure if he marries this girl, they keep harping, and failure, in their family, is a shameful inheritance. Roth explains: "Paul Hertz had uncles who had failed, too, but that was in the world of commerce. Mr. Hertz bought and sold with little talent and saved where interest amounted to pennies. When he finally emerged from his fourth failure — this last in frozen foods — he had nothing to show for himself save a sinus condition and a holy dread of heart failure. He took to melting camphor under his nose on a spoon and arranged for a small bank loan so as to purchase, for his heart's ease, an easy chair, and then he settled down to wait for the end."

Paul won't listen to his parents' warnings, but when his uncles, the

CBXT-Saturday Heroes

Sportscasters Glenn Bjarnason and Ernie Afaganis turn the sport spotlight on the 13-and-under basketball stars of the Edmonton Boys' Basketball League. This week's opponents are the A & W Royals and the Optimist Bears.

Country Calendar

Dick Bocking reports on Central Alberta feed lots.

Youth Concert

The first of four special one-hour youth concerts to be seen in this time period during the season. Host is composer Harry Somers, who welcomes the performers, 21-year-old Bolivian violinist Jaime Laredo, 24-year-old Montreal pianist John McKay, a jazz orchestra led by Jerry Toth, the 24-voice CBC Youth Choir conducted by Elmer Iseler and a special orchestra conducted by Mario Bernardi. Produced by Paddy Sampson. Musical numbers:

Allegro and Blues, jazz composition	by Gordon Delamont	Jazz Group
Tchaikovsky's Violin Concerto,	Finale	Laredo
Three Songs from King Arthur	by Purcell	Youth Choir
Toccata for Piano by Clermont Pepin	McKay	Orchestra
Alborado del Gracioso by Ravel		Orchestra
Six Rumanian Dances	by Bela Bartok	Laredo
Improvisations for Jazz Band and	Symphony Orchestra by
Johnny Dankworth and	Matyas Seiber	Orchestra and Jazz Group

Heritage

Through paintings, drawings and sculpture from the National Gallery in Ottawa, Canada's history is traced, particularly the history of Christianity in Canada. A dramatization featuring two young boys in search of adventure is the framework for showing the 190 works of art seen on the program.

20/20

November Ranch. Film shows cattle being driven in the British Columbia Cariboo area, from their summer rangeland 4,000 feet above sea level to winter ranges 2,000 feet below. Also, scenes of the Chilcotin plateau people as they visit among themselves, make their own amusements, and stock up for a long winter. Narration is by Hilda Mortimer. A CBC-TV Vancouver production.

Jaime Laredo, 21, hailed as one of the foremost young violinists to appear in years, is one of the outstanding artists seen Sunday on Youth Concert.

Twentieth Century

We Fed Our Enemies. The story of America's unparalleled and humanitarian outpouring of aid after two World Wars to save both allies and millions of former enemies from starvation.

Participants are: Admiral Lewis L. Strauss, Herbert Hoover's secretarial assistant at the time the former President headed the American Relief Administration; Henry C. Wolfe, on the staff of the American mission to Russia; General Lucius D. Clay, Military Governor in Germany after the Second World War; and former War Department Food Administrator, Tracy S. Voorhees. Host is Walter Cronkite.

Citizens' Forum

Confederation — A Century Later: Does It Still Work? The first of a series of four programs in which 12 men from across Canada discuss whether the British North America Act responds to the needs of modern Canadian society and, if not, what changes should be made. Chairman is Gerard Pelletier, editor of La Presse.

Today, Education. Francis Leddy, vice-president and dean of the faculty of arts, University of Saskatchewan, introduces this subject. The question is asked: Is the present system of provincial control adequate to supply the educational services required in technological society?

The Nature Of Things

The Way the Ball Bounces. Hosts are professors Donald Ivey and Patterson Hume of the University of Toronto, recently awarded the Thomas Alva Edison award for the best educational science film of 1962, (Frames of Reference). They describe the physical properties of rubber and explain why it defies classification with solids, liquids or gasses.

Walt Disney

Banner in the Sky. First of a two-part adventure-drama about a young mountain climber who dreams of being the first person to conquer the mountain which claimed his father's life years earlier.

Starring James MacArthur, Michael Rennie and Janet Munro.

Hazel

Hazel teaches one of George's clients the art and benefits of relaxation.

Flashback

Panelists Alan Millar, Allan Manings, Margaret Morris and guest panelist singer Juliette, attempt to identify famous persons, objects and fads of the past.

A Look At Monaco

An hour-long special film report on the colourful principality, with Princess Grace as narrator and guide. Scheduled stops in the tour include: the Oceanographic Museum and its accompanying scientific centre under the direction of world-famous scientist Jacques-Yves Cousteau; the Monte Carlo Opera House; the Foyer Sainte Devote, an orphanage under the patronage of Princess Grace; and the royal palace.

Bonanza

The Hayburner. Adam and Hoss buy a thoroughbred race horse with the intent of winning the Virginia City Sweepstakes.

Quest

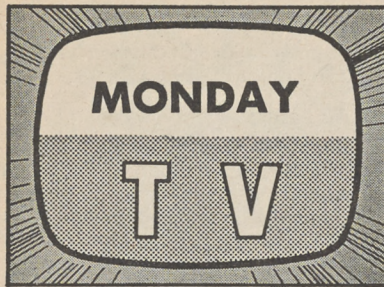

Paul Loves Libby. Adapted by M. Charles Cohen from American author Philip Roth's novel, Letting Go. A young Jewish boy gets only tears from his parents when he announces he wants to marry a Catholic girl. His uncles, like his father, are both failures; nevertheless they give advice about the ways of life to their nephew.

Introducing Graydon Gould as Paul, and starring Larry Mann, Martha Henry, Cec Linder, Sammy Sales and Marcia Diamond. Narrator is Philip Roth.

CBWT-Of Ballads and Bards

Folksongs with vocalist Reg Gibson and guitarist-vocalist Jim Pirie. Producer, Ray McConnell. A few of their selections:

Buckeye Jim	Reg
Yankee Doodle Dixie	Jim
Darling Corey	Duet
Go Away from My Window	Reg

Program Notes

FEBRUARY 19

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and additional program information

National School Telecasts

Current Events. (Ages 12-15). Each program deals with a single event, country or personality in the news with the emphasis both on historical background and current significance.

Explorations in Art. (Ages 10-13). Purpose of the program is to stimulate interest and present problems that will challenge the mind, imagination and initiative of the viewers.

Paper Sculpturing — Snip, Rip and Dip. Children of all age levels enjoy manipulating paper into forms and objects. Working with paper intrigues the imagination and is one of the most versatile art experiences a teacher can introduce.

Take Thirty

1. On a visit to Toronto, U.S. Admiral Lewis L. Strauss talks about his recent book, Men and Decisions. He reveals his first-hand knowledge of momentous decision-making by former associates, including former U.S. presidents Hoover, Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower.

2. Margaret Cork and Gwen Oliver of Toronto talk about some of the seven children they have adopted through the Foster Parents Plan, and who live in various parts of the world. They recently travelled around the world to see their wards.

3. Dr. F. H. Knelman talks about the sex life of the flatworm and points out some startling implications for humans.

Scarlett Hill

Return From Night. Continuation of the story in which a woman who has been a recluse for many years is befriended by an author who wishes to write a story of her past.

Ladies First

Guest is John England, president of the National Union of Teachers of England and Wales. High school principal C. S. Gow, comments on some major issues related to Canadian education and Mrs. Gloria Queen-Hughes examines the education structure as part of her series on municipal government.

Razzle Dazzle

1. Mr. Showbiz and the Turtleshell Players present a big outdoor drama called "Frolic at Chibougamaun."

2. Another adventure with Terwilliger Topsoil is drawn by George Feyer.

CBXT—Children of the World

Hostess Betty Nickerson introduces a collection of paintings done by children from Kenya and Jamaica. Producer, A. P. H. Scott.

CBXT—Gateway

1. Co-hosts Jim Crossen and Jim Schrumm welcome another of the Muk-Luk Queens to the show.

2. Law for the Layman. Al Dubensky and A. O. Ackroyd talk about the legalities of Labour Relations.

CBXT—Pete and Gladys

Gladys suspects foul play when she finds a human skeleton in the trunk of Uncle Paul's car.

CBWT—Junior Hi-Lites

Children appearing on today's show are pianist Graham Reynolds; accordionists Seppo Sormunen and Gordon Didora; harmonica player George Spandgiannis; vocalist Carmen Toews; and The Alpine Group who perform an Alpine Peasant Dance, Janice Naven, Irene Smith, Louise Smith, Linda Perfumo, Jane McNutt, Mary Ann Erickson, Teresa Loades, and Elaine Lawton. Producer, Don Browne-Wilkinson.

Perry Mason

The Case of the Crooked Candle. Mason resorts to courtroom gymnastics in an effort to trap a killer and to free his client from a charge of murdering her husband.

The Lively Arts

Toronto Jazz. A close look at the Toronto jazz scene in a film specially produced for The Lively Arts by the National Film Board. The program features a cross-section of Toronto jazz bands and groups, including those of Don Francks, Lenny Breau, Don Thompson and Alf Jones. According to director Donald Owen, the spirit of improvisation that characterizes jazz music has been applied to the making of the film.

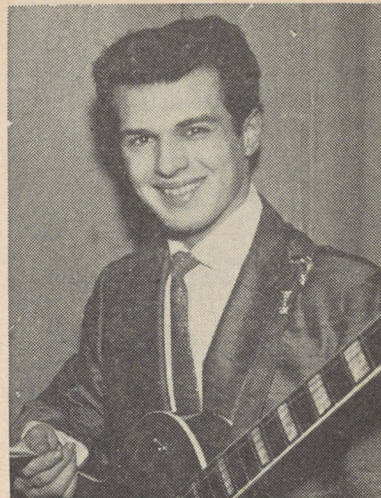

CBWT—Our Man Higgins

Higgins is kept busy preventing his nephew's gambling creditors from visiting Aunt Martha.

CBWT—On The Scene

1. A visit to the Trappist Monastery, St. Norbert.

2. A film on the New York Pro Musica performance with the Winnipeg Symphony Orchestra at the Playhouse Theatre. Producer, Perry Rosemond.

Jazz bands of the Toronto area, including that of Len Breau, above, are heard Tuesday night on The Lively Arts.

failures, offer him advice about marrying, he begins to feel uneasy. Sensible as some of their suggestions are, Paul realizes that the final decision is his, and he makes it in a funny, sad, but true-to-life way that reflects the feeling of the whole novel: despair.

Roth feels that modern American life is radically wrong. "It stupefies, it sickens, it infuriates, and finally it is a kind of embarrassment to one's own meagre imagination." He criticizes other authors who insist on being hopeful. He says: "If the world is as crooked and unreal as I think it is becoming; if one feels less and less power in the face of this unreality; if the inevitable end is destruction . . . then why is the writer pleased?"

A curious thing about Letting Go is that almost every critic has described the book as unsatisfactory, but admits that he enjoyed Roth's writing. The Saturday Review found it "the kind of bad book that only a good writer could have written." Time called it "a failure of a quality few writers could achieve."

Explorations

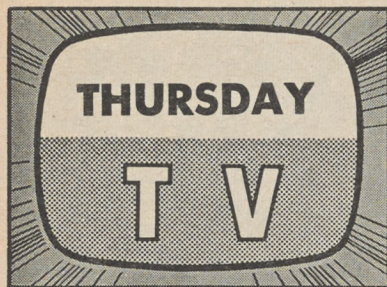

The Disordered Mind. First of a four-part series examining mental illness. Actual cases are shown at the start of treatment. The progress of the patient is followed through to conclusion when the patient is well on the way to recovery.

The series is produced by Robert Anderson Associates Limited, and each program features comments by a discussant psychiatrist, interviewed by Robert Anderson. Dr. H. E. Lehmann, clinical director of the Verdun Protestant Hospital, Montreal, and associate professor of psychiatry at McGill University, is consultant for the series.

Today, Psychosomatic Conditions—Obesity. An entire family receives psycho-therapy when a 13-year-old girl is fat and unhappy because of her compulsive eating habits. Discussant is Dr. Henry Kravitz, associate chief of psychiatry, Jewish General Hospital, Montreal.

CBWT—Time Out For Music

Georges LaFleche and the Bob McMullin Combo provide a half-hour of relaxing popular music. Jeffrey Anderson, producer.

National School Telecasts

Physical Education. (Ages 6-8). Today, Sharing Our Fun. The telecast begins with children using simple apparatus. Equipment stations are then set up and small groups of children share the equipment at these stations.

Safety Is No Accident. (Ages 10-13). The subject of safety is dealt with in relation to elementary-school pupils.

Take Thirty

1. Jean Morrison examines humidifiers and dehumidifiers, pointing out what to look for when buying them and how effective they are.

2. Paul Fox analyses a current news story.

Scarlett Hill

Return From Night. Conclusion of the story begun last Friday in which a woman who has lived as a recluse for many years is befriended by an author who secretly wishes to write the story of her past.

Ladies First

1. Marilyn Phillips and Mary Liz Bayer survey the field of children's clothes and emphasize the low-cost, easy-care togs for youngsters.

2. Mat Gauer prepares Sauerbraten and dumplings as a dinner menu suggestion for late winter appetites.

Razzle Dazzle

Swami Gunga Din and assistant Swami, Abu, start a Swami Club. They make club rules and compose a club song.

The Scarlet Pimpernel

The Scarlet Pimpernel is pursued to London by a French official when he kidnaps a French Princess from under the official's nose.

CBWT—Stop, Look and Listen

Charlemagne decides to improve himself by returning to school, so Marlborough, Henrietta and Florence help him decide what career to follow.

Hobbies 'N Handicrafts. Geoff Spurll begins his series on photography. This week he deals with the basic principles of photography and shows how to make a pin-hole camera. Producer, Don Browne-Wilkinson.

CBXT—Reach For The Top

Teams competing this week are Victoria Composite and Salisbury High against Strathcona Composite and St. Mary's Separate High.

The Defenders

The Eye of Fear. The Prestons defend a man when circumstantial evidence points to the fact that he murdered his wife.

Playdate

Trio. Three one-act plays.

1. The Stronger, by August Strindberg. A talkative woman and her silent friend discover they have something in common, but who is the stronger? Starring Irena Mayeska and Anna Reiser.

2. The Long Goodbye, by Tennessee Williams. Moving day evokes memories for a lonely young man preparing to leave the family apartment for the last time. Starring James Beggs, Len Birman and Beth Morris.

3. The New Tenant, by Eugene Ionesco. Pride of possessions is carried to its absurd conclusions when a new tenant moves into an unfur-

by
WITTMAN
CBC Winnipeg
Sportscaster

THE ROARIN' GAME has moved front and centre this week on radio and television, with coverage of provincial playdowns in Manitoba and Saskatchewan added to the list of events on the CBC sports calendar.

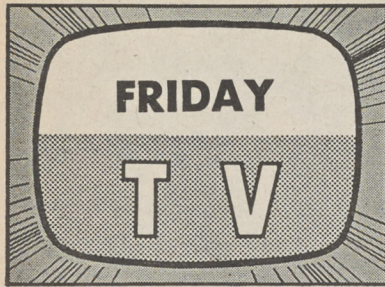

In Saskatchewan, where the Richardsons from Regina are gunning for a fourth provincial crown, listeners will be able to follow the action on CBK. In the best-of-three Saskatchewan final, should the title be decided in the second game Saturday afternoon, highlights of the playdowns will be heard on Prairie Sports Final that evening. In the event that a third and deciding game should be required, Ken Reeves will provide the rock-by-rock description beginning at 9:30 p.m. and running to conclusion on CBK.

In Manitoba, where listeners to CBW radio have been provided with complete results from the 75th anniversary Manitoba Curling Association Bonspiel and Consols playdowns, the deciding game of the best-of-three provincial final, should it be needed, will be broadcast live beginning at 9:30 p.m. Saturday, with Bob Moir calling the shots.

And on Saturday evening on CBWT, I'll be on hand with the wind-up of our week long television coverage of the Consols playdowns.

In addition to coverage of provincial playdowns, curling enthusiasts can also tune in to another match in the CBC's Cross-Canada Curling series, featuring Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island.

Another great winter sport, skiing, comes before the TV cameras Saturday when the International Slalom races (Please turn to page 33)

Program Notes

FEBRUARY 22

See also page 4 of next week's issue for possible changes in these notes and additional program information

Western Schools

Window on the Universe. Today, on the threshold of the space age we study the stars with more interest than ever before. An understanding of the problems of, and plans for, the exploration of space is based on a knowledge of our solar system and our "neighbours in space."

Today, A Man Jumps Over the Moon. A young boy makes his second visit to the Queen Elizabeth Planetarium in Edmonton and talks with Ian McLennan, director of the Planetarium. They plan an imaginary journey around the moon which gives them a closer view of the near or bright side, a shadowy glimpse of the mysterious dark side, and a view of the earth from the moon. Out of this journey come concepts of the moon's orbit, its phases and its effect on the earth as well as some knowledge of the moon itself.

Take Thirty

Barbara Green visits (on film) the studio of five Toronto women potters, Annette Zakuta, Dorothy Midanik, Maida Markson, Bailie Leslie and Marion Lewis. These five young married women combined resources and rented a small house in central Toronto where they have facilities for making and displaying their pots.

Scarlett Hill

The Queen of Spades. Beginning a new week-long serialized drama in which a young architect returns home one day to discover that his wife and two sons have been killed in a car accident.

CBWT—Ladies First

1. Hugh Comes from Trinidad and Frazer Earle discuss what it feels like to meet with prejudice and how to combat discrimination.

Tommy Banks (left) and Harry Boon present keyboard artistry for CBXT Edmonton viewers every Friday evening at 7:00 p.m. on Keynotes.

2. Ruth Dyker gives her weekend marketing hints.

Razzle Dazzle

1. Hiram Cornatasse visits Howard in the Alley and brings him a present.

2. Ace Baker presents his Field Day Games.

Friday Island

A Pinch of Salt. Boomer and Dick submit their Aunt Vi's name to a television cooking show. When she accepts an invitation to appear on the program she becomes petrified with stage fright.

Stu Davis

A visit with singer Stu Davis, for 15 minutes of western songs.

Yonder On the Rollin' Plains
An Old Sombrero
This Ain't the Same Old Range

CBXT—Keynotes

Zuzu Sabourin and Jay Wilkinson join Tommy Banks at the piano and Harry Boon at the organ for a relaxing half-hour of musical entertainment.

Country Hoedown

Special guest is singer Pat Hervey.

Tommy Ambrose

Tommy's special guest is comedian-impressionist Rich Little of Ottawa.

Little does a selection from his new album, My Fellow Canadians, in which he presents a humorous version of a radio-TV-Press Conference with the Prime Minister. Sharing the guest spotlight with him is Toronto vocalist Joyce Hahn.

Empire

Tal Garret runs into difficulty when he attempts to show his independence by spending a week alone in a ruthless honky-tonk town.

CBWT—I'm Dickens, He's Fenster

Exotic food and rituals surround Arch and Harry at a Persian restaurant party for a fellow worker.

CBWT—Biography

Generalissimo Francisco Franco. Story of the man who became the military leader of the insurgents in the Spanish Civil War of 1936 and led them to victory. At the end of the Civil War in 1939 he added the titles of "caudillo" (leader) and prime minister to the others he possessed, organized his cabinet and began the task of reconstruction. He has been in power ever since.

PRINCESS GRACE

than four storeys in height; now, sky-scrapers are an increasingly common sight. The dream-like atmosphere has been pushed aside to some extent by a business boom that dates from 1956 and shows no signs of abating. At one time the Casino brought in nearly all the public revenues. Today it provides but a small fraction.

One big reason for the economic boom has been Monaco's tax-free status, which has attracted investors from abroad. The other big reason undoubtedly has been Princess Grace.

Her presence is credited with doubling Monaco's tourist trade. Each year approximately 100,000 visitors stay in Monaco's hotels. Each day one or two thousand of them visit the palace in the hope that they will see the Princess.

She is the dazzling jewel in Monaco's crown. She has given the Monegasques an heir to the throne and thus ensured their state's perpetuity. She honours gala occasions with her beauty and poise. In the best tradition of all royal families she has bestowed her patronage generously on worthwhile community organizations.

Viewers will have the opportunity of seeing the new Monaco and its glamorous princess for themselves on Sunday evening.

CONFEDERATION

Canadian Association for Adult Education was collecting suggestions for the coming season's programs, two topics that came up again and again were changes in the BNA Act, and relations between French- and English-speaking Canadians. The aim of the programs is simple: to initiate discussion for the benefit of the Canadian public on whether the BNA Act responds to the needs of modern Canada.

The following questions give an indication of the starting points:

Education: Is the present system of provincial control adequate to supply the educational services required?

Economic Development: Should the "have" provinces assume a greater responsibility for developing the resources and raising the living standards of the "have-not" provinces?

Fiscal Arrangements: Does the existing system of sharing out the national wealth between the central government and the provincial governments ensure justice and efficiency in federal-provincial arrangements?

Civil Rights: Are fundamental freedoms and human rights inadequately protected by the BNA Act? Should they be entrenched in a constitution which overrides provincial authority?

On television, the discussion sessions will be presented weekly, in the regular Citizens' Forum time period (Sunday afternoons) on February 17 and 24, March 3 and 10. On radio, the four sessions will be broadcast on consecutive evenings, February 19 to 22 inclusive, at 10:30 p.m., under the title Confederation.

A resume of the main points raised by the introductory speakers is available in a pamphlet published by the Canadian Association for Adult Education. Copies may be obtained by sending 50 cents to Citizens' Forum, 113 St. George Street, Toronto 5, Ontario.

Program Notes

8:35 a.m.—Postmark U.K.

(8:30 a.m. on CBX)

Eastbourne, a seaside town on the Sussex coast, is one of England's most popular holiday spots. Since the 19th century when the virtues of the seaside and its bracing air became fashionable for relaxation, the English have clung to the ritual of the fortnight by the sea as an annual holiday.

A whole folk-lore about the seaside has sprung up—a gallery of bathing beauties, tyrannical landladies, straw-hatted entertainers and garish funny postcards that enshrine some of the oldest jokes in the world. Gordon Snell visits this peaceful town and talks to some of the permanent residents about Eastbourne's attractions.

9:03 a.m.—Sunday School of the Air

Continuing the series Stories from the Bible with the Rev. W. H. McMahon of Broadway First Baptist Church moderating a panel made up of children from the Baptist, United, Presbyterian and Lutheran churches. Today's theme is The Forgiveness of Sins.

The St. James Presbyterian Junior Choir is directed by Mrs. R. Earl. Story teller is Norm Micklewright. Producer, W. H. Randall.

CBC STAGE:

Drama Centers On Situation In South Africa

THE NOOSE-KNOT BALLAD, a radio verse-drama by H. W. D. Manson, Professor of English at the University of Natal, will be presented on CBC Stage Sunday, February 17, at 8 p.m. on radio.

Script editor Lenore Clare describes the play as a brilliant piece of writing, telling of a violent cycle set in motion by repression in a South African community. She says it was first submitted to the CBC in 1960 as a TV drama. At that time the CBC could not find a place for it, so Mrs. Clare suggested that Manson rewrite it as a radio drama, which he did with such finesse that she has asked him to submit more plays for possible CBC production.

Manson says: "The Moose-Knot Ballad isn't a political play, but it deals indirectly with the sorts of repressions that a violently bigoted Calvinism imposes on the minds of people. And also it is, I believe, a civilized play insofar as it deals with this sort of problem in a sympathetic manner. I would like Canadians to feel that some sort of civilized standards still exist in this unfortunate country.

"A friend of mine, Professor van Hoyningen, just back from a lengthy holiday in Canada, tells me that the standard of broadcasting in Canada is unusually high and that serious plays are quite often presented. She has also told me about some very fine productions in Stratford, Ont.—far better, she said, than productions she'd seen in Stratford, England. It's very encouraging to hear such things. In this country the general standard has fallen shamefully. It's just about impossible to listen to Radio South Africa without getting into a hopeless rage. I haven't even tried, as a result, to place any of my work with our local broadcasting company."

Manson goes on to say: "I have written nine full-length verse-plays. Two of them have been published and another four have been accepted for publication in this country at six-month intervals. None of them, except The Moose-Knot Ballad, is in radio form.

"I'm on eight-months' writing leave from my teaching at the university and am engaged in a new play. The university has been good enough to grant me this leave with four months' pay—the first time it has ever been done at a South African university as far as I know. It is quite a 'victory' for one engaged in 'mere writing.' Work in other spheres, especially research, has always been met with sympathetic attention."

with mainland Chinese without the aid of an interpreter. In 1895, Formosa passed into Japanese hands, following Japan's victory in the Sino-Japanese war. For the next 50 years, during which the island was a Japanese colony, its natural resources were developed, contributing greatly to Japan's economy, and the living standards of the Formosans became among the highest in Southeast Asia. Immigrants from Japan were comparatively few, numbering no more than 250,000, and the urban population remained predominantly Chinese. During the Second World War, Japan used Formosa as its principal air and naval base for the South China seas.

At the Cairo Conference of December, 1943, it was decided that Formosa should revert to Chinese sovereignty after Japan's defeat. And after that defeat occurred, the island came under the administrative control of Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalist Government. After the communist conquest of the mainland, only Formosa and a number of other islands remained to the Nationalists, and the Chiang Kai-Shek government and loyal members of the armed forces moved to these islands, setting up a complete government-in-exile.

The native Formosans, never closely associated with mainland China and drawn still further away from Chinese customs and traditions during 50 years of Japanese rule, at first resented the coming of the Nationalists, but in latter years they have apparently become more content, as the economy of the island has grown rapidly under Nationalist rule, with strong support from the United States.

The civil war which began on the mainland has been continued during the past 15 years, and incidents between rival Chinese forces have been frequent. But these hostilities have been confined, in recent years, to minor engagements—clashes between small gunboats, and guerrilla activity by Nationalist groups on the mainland. The military situation is a complete stand-off, for, while the Nationalists are said to possess a well-trained and well-equipped army, they cannot move against the mainland without logistical support in the form of ships, supplies, and ship-and-air cover. And that support, the United States has made clear, is not forthcoming in the immediate or foreseeable future.

Bass-baritone Jan Rubes is host Mondays at 8:30 p.m. on Songs of My People, with music from the homelands of many new Canadians.

While the internal economy and industrial progress on the island seem to be satisfactory to the Nationalists, the Government faces at least one major problem that grows in importance with the years: the choice of a successor to 75-year-old President Chiang. The obvious successor is Chen Cheng, 65, who is second-in-command not only in the Government but in the ruling Kuomintang (Nationalist Party) where he has been deputy director-general since the 1957 Party Congress. But Chen Cheng has been reported to be in ill health, and speculation has it that the next in line for the presidency may be Chiang's eldest son, Chiang Ching-kuo, now 52, army general, deputy secretary-general of the National Defense Council, director of the Chinese Youth Corps, and chairman of a commission in charge of retired servicemen.

Beginnings of a Nation. (Grades 5-8). A series emphasizing the need for a good background in Canada's history. Today, Traders. Much of Canada's history has been determined by what was traded for a fur. Changes in the way of life as indicated by trade goods and communications are illustrated on today's program.

6:45 p.m.—Life and Literature

The Art of the Critic. The second in a series of five talks by George Woodcock, associate professor, department of English at the University of British Columbia. Woodcock is the editor of the critical quarterly, Canadian Literature, and his books include Ravens and Prophets and To The City of the Dead.

The series is about literary criticism and rests on Professor Woodcock's argument that "criticism is in no sense a lesser form of literature, that, in fact, it influences and helps to mould other forms of literature and by shaping and also by interpretation performs its own creative function."

Today, the history of criticism in English literature up to the end of the 19th century.

sions are carted off for storage. James Beggs plays the young man, Joe; Len Birman appears as his friend, Silva; and Beth Morris as Joe's sister, Myra.

As he demonstrates movingly in this play, Williams has great compassion for "the people who are not meant to win"—the lost, strange, fragile people who long to break out of their lonely cells, to identify themselves by reaching another person. "Hell is yourself," Williams insists.

The New Tenant, by a master of the theatre of the absurd, Eugene Ionesco, points out the uselessness of sentimentality, particularly over possessions. Ionesco does this with cold calculation that is also wryly witty, when he tells of a new tenant who moves into an unfurnished room with the accumulated possessions of a lifetime. Ionesco carries this situation to an absurd conclusion but he does it with grace and precision that assume ballet proportions before the ridiculous ending.

Critics have labelled Ionesco everything from "insanely funny writer" to "the poet of double-talk." He claims that his plays really aren't intellectual. "They're primitive, and people have lost the habit of thinking primitively, in terms of images," he explains. "They confuse reality with flat verbal realism." He likes quoting the opinion of his 18-year-old daughter who once remarked: "Just between the two of us, papa, I won't repeat it, naturally, but won't you admit that your plays are rather silly and a little childish?"

As Leo Orenstein points out, The Long Goodbye and The New Tenant are about sacred cows. Williams sees poetry in them, evaluates them emotionally. Ionesco takes a clinical view and does his assessing intellectually. Williams agitates the heart; Ionesco the mind.

10:30 p.m.—Confederation

Second in a series of four programs in which 12 Canadians discuss the British North America Act, its good points and shortcomings, and proposals for change. The series is taken from a bilingual seminar held in Ste. Agathe, Que., January 6-9.

Today, Economic Development. Introduction is by Jacques Parizeau, economist and professor at L'Ecole des Hautes Etudes Commerciales. Question: Should the "have" provinces assume greater responsibility for developing resources and raising living standards of "have-not" provinces?

Book Clubs: Good or Bad?

SINCE THE Book-of-the-Month Club was founded in 1926, it has distributed 180 million volumes—more than are in all the libraries in the United States, including the Congressional Library—according to Harry Scherman, chairman of the club. Since its success first became apparent, many other book clubs have been organized, and now the book-club business is a huge, highly profitable one. CBC Wednesday Night will examine it from many points of view in a radio program on February 20 at 8:05 p.m. It has been prepared by William French, literary editor of the Globe and Mail, Toronto. Production is by Weldon Hanbury.

Interviews were recorded in New York and Toronto with a book critic, a novelist, executives of the Book-of-the-Month Club (including chairman Harry Scherman), executives of specialty book clubs, book-club members, and Peter Bruithuis, associate professor of English literature at Victoria College, University of Toronto, who is a critic for the New York Times Sunday book section, an author, and a former book club member.

The program finds out how book clubs operate, what their effects are on the literary scene in North America, and how their promoters and the general public feel about them. Nearly everyone interviewed had more to say in favour of book clubs than against them, reports Weldon Hanbury.

John Avison conducts an ensemble Wednesday at 9:00 p.m., in a program from the University of British Columbia.

Professor Bruithuis was an exception. "Book clubs cater to lower middle-class taste," he says. "After all, they are in the business to sell books, and in this respect are like any distributor of a mass product, be it washing machines or vacuum cleaners. They choose books which they know will appeal to the largest number of people in their readership. This has the effect of debasing taste. It caters to a kind of homogeneity of mind which in the end reduces the value of the literary product. There is nothing, I think, in most of the books that are put out, to really challenge the mind, to demand hard thought, to disconcert people, to upset their ideas. On the whole they (book-club books) serve to confirm their readers' built-in complacencies and their respectable attitudes." Professor Bruithuis adds: "With book clubs the commercial values come first, the literary, the critical values come second."

Charles Poore, book critic for the New York Times, disagrees. "I would say book clubs have broadened reading tremendously," he says. How do novelists feel about them? Gerald Green, author of The Last Angry Man, expressed the general consensus of opinion when he said: "I'm in favour of them. I think all authors are."

held at Collingwood, Ont., are telecast. Details on this program were slim at press time, as arrangements still were being made, but enthusiasts can look forward to an hour of excitement, we're sure.

For the five pin bowlers, the regular feature from O'Connor Bowl in Toronto is also included on the viewing schedule for Saturday the 16th.

Winding things up Saturday night is the National Hockey League telecast from the Montreal forum, featuring the Canadiens, and the first place Chicago Black Hawks. At least the Hawks were in first place at the time of this writing, but in that tight scramble for the leadership, the situation could change almost overnight.

That's it in the way of sports coverage on the CBC; once again it looms as another informative and entertaining week.

THE DISORDERED MIND

again four months later, when there has been a noticeable change in their attitudes.

The second program, on February 27, concerns the obsessive-compulsive, in this case a middle-aged man who had struggled all his life with a crippling neurosis which, despite his great intelligence and excellent education, had prevented him from taking his proper place in society. For five years he had not been able to hold a job. He will be seen at the start of his treatment, when, to him, his case seemed hopeless, and again after eight months' intensive psycho-therapy with Rita Beauclair, R.N., of St. Mary's Hospital, Montreal, who is assistant to Dr. Karl Stern, chief of psychiatry at St. Mary's, associate professor of psychiatry at the University of Montreal, and professor of psychiatry at the University of Ottawa. Dr. Stern will discuss the case on the program.

"The trouble is," says the patient, "that you can't reach down inside you and pull out your defective emotions and cast them away for better or for worse."

A man suffering from paranoid schizophrenia will be studied in the March 6 program. At the height of his illness he believes that an "organization" involving the whole world is out to destroy him, and he becomes extremely withdrawn and suspicious. He is now recovered and has returned to a responsible job with a large company. His case is discussed on the program by Dr. Henry Durost, senior psychiatrist at Verdun Protestant Hospital.

There will be no program in the series on March 13, when The Telephone Hour will be presented. The fourth program, about a compulsive car thief, will be seen March 20. It concerns a 21-year-old who has been stealing cars—and getting caught—since he was 10. Now he's serving a term in Kingston Penitentiary, where his psychiatrist is Dr. George Scott. The program was produced with the co-operation of the Penitentiary Service of Canada. Officials seen on the program include Juvenile Court Judge W. W. Creighton and Magistrate R. A. Connor, former Police Chief, of Port Arthur, Ontario.

"I never stole money or things like that because I was always well provided for," says the young patient. "But any type of vehicle: bicycles, motorcycles, cars—it made me feel good to be behind the wheel." His behaviour baffles his parents, his friends, city officials in his home town, and the magistrate. But Magistrate Connor strikes a hopeful note when he says "I have a great deal of faith in psychiatrists and psychologists in assisting those of us in the correction field to find the solution to the problems posed by this type of individual."

RECIPES FEATURED ON
"LADIES FIRST" EACH THURSDAY

VALENTINE DESSERT

4 egg whites
Few grains of salt
1 cup confectioners' sugar
1 tsp. vanilla

Beat egg whites and salt until they hold a stiff peak. Beat in $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar, 1 tbsp. at a time, beating after each addition until sugar is dissolved. Meringue should be thick and glossy after adding all the sugar and vanilla. Sprinkle $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar over meringue and fold in. Grease and flour a cookie sheet, shape meringue into a heart, having sides of heart raised. Sprinkle with a little more sugar. Bake 250° about 40 minutes. Turn off oven and let dry in oven 4 or 5 hrs.

Filling

CUSTARD

4 egg yolks
1 tbsp. sugar
Few grains salt
2 cups milk (1 cup skim, 1 cup evaporated)
1 pkg. strawberry jelly powder
 $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. peppermint flavour

Beat yolks slightly, add sugar, salt and scalded milk. Cook over double boiler until custard coats a spoon. Add jelly powder. Stir until dissolved. Cool.

Fold in $\frac{3}{4}$ cup whipped cream. Add flavouring. Pour into baked meringue shell. Let set overnight.

SAUCE

3 15-oz. pkgs. frozen raspberries thawed and sieved
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ tbsp. corn starch

Reserving $\frac{1}{4}$ cup cold juice, put rest on stove to heat, blend cornstarch with reserved juice and stir into hot juice, cook until thick and transparent. Spoon over custard. Garnish with whipped cream.

He Plays Music to Chuckle By

WHO ARE Samuel Hersenhoren's favourite comedians? — Wayne and Shuster, quite naturally.

The wavy-haired veteran musician with a neatly-trimmed goatee has conducted the orchestra for Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster since they started in CBC Radio almost 20 years ago, and he made the transition to CBC Television with them in 1954.

"The long association I've had with Johnny and Frank," says Hersenhoren, "has been most harmonious and enjoyable. Their sense of humour—on and off the air—is a constant source of delight for me. And they're gentlemen! They are very talented themselves and they respect ability in others."

The Toronto-born musician-conductor, 54, has worked in radio since the mid-1920s and on CBC Television since its inception.

Although neither his parents nor his two brothers were actively interested in music, Sam started studying violin at the age of five. When he was 13, he was invited to accompany famed Toronto musical instructor Jan Hambourg to Europe as his protege and spent the next three years on the continent under Hambourg's tutorship.

"I was most fortunate," says Hersenhoren, "in that even my practice sessions were under constant supervision. I couldn't develop bad habits; if I did something wrong while practising in my room I immediately heard from downstairs."

Hersenhoren returned to Toronto in 1925 and immediately began substituting for violinists in groups providing musical accompaniment for silent films in Toronto neighbourhood cinemas.

Hersenhoren soon began getting work in radio orchestras. He played and conducted on many Toronto stations identified by call letters long since forgotten. Often the studios were rented apartments hung with drapes to improve the acoustics.

He also played or conducted for concerts, vaudeville, opera and ballet. Never forgetting his classical training, Hersenhoren formed the New World Chamber Orchestra in 1932 and toured Ontario schools, giving hundreds of concerts after-hours for music-hungry students. He first conducted for CBC Radio in 1933, when the CBC was known as the Canadian Radio Broadcasting Commission. Among the top musicians in the orchestra at this time was his good friend Percy Faith, now a well-known figure in music in the United States.

A member of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra for 17 years, Hersenhoren has played with the CBC Symphony the past three years. He won the LaFleche Trophy for outstanding contribution in broadcast music for a conductor three consecutive seasons, in 1945, '46 and '47.

Hersenhoren lives with his wife Jeanie and their 10-year-old daughter Suzi in an old, three-storey house in downtown Toronto. Jeanie's family were in the furniture business for 150 years and the Hersenhoren home is tastefully furnished in Victorian style including an antique settee built by her great grandfather.

Although music is a hobby and profession with Sam, both he and Jeanie like to garden. During the summer they raise mixed vegetables at a cottage on the Bay of Quinte, near Napanee, Ont.
